sity, Tokyo, Japan, to recommend a man qualified for the position of professorship of economics and finance at their institution, named Dr. Vickers as the one man best fitted to fill that responsible position. He served in that position with the highest degree of success for twelve years. He was in Japan during the Russo-Japanese war and was closely associated with the administration throughout the entire war. His influence in shaping the policies of the Japanese government during those twelve years was considered by the emperor of such value and importance that he conferred upon him the Fourth Order of Merit and Cordon of the Rising Sun, honors rarely conferred upon men of foreign birth. # GERMAN EMBARGO

On Dyestuffs and None by Great Britain is What State Department Says.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Failure to move dyestuffs from Europe to the United States is due to Germany instead of Creat Britain, according to a statement issued today by the state department. Permission of the British foreign office for two shipments of dyestuffs is still in effect but the German embargo has made their movement impossible. The British embassy has expressed the opinion that if Germany permits the cargoes to move it is permits the cargoes to move it is probable that permission for other shipments would be granted.
